

My journey with Tavcom

I first met Mike Tennent way back in the mid to late eighties, our paths crossed on several occasions when he worked for Vision Research and Frowds in the days “Tubed Cameras” and “Video Multiplexers”.

When I started my own company in 2001, I was having a meeting with Phil Tennent who was working for VCL at the time and I happened to mention my time at Chubb Alarms when I used to deliver training courses. He suggested that I ought to get in touch with Mike again as Tavcom Training had really taken off.

Purley by coincidence during a conversation with John Kay (also sadly missed), he suggested making contact with Mike especially as he wanted to step back from his training role at Tavcom to concentrate on his consultancy business.

That first meeting at the Uplands Park Hotel where Tavcom ran their courses opened up an opportunity for me. I’m not sure I wanted to be a Tavcom Tutor but Mike in his usual persuasive way made the decision for me!

Over the years we had many conversations about the ever evolving CCTV industry, Tubed Cameras to CCD’s, CRT to LCD monitors, VCR’s to DVR’s and how IP would never take off!

I’ve been involved with Tavcom Training for the best part of 20 years now and would like to congratulate them and wish them every success in the future.
