

James Sanderson

It was 2018 or 2019. We were out in Dubai delivering training with Mark Werrick, Paul Tennent and Hadi. One night we went for a meal in the hotel courtesy of Hadi and were sat around the table chatting as you do before going to the buffet. That night the hotel was serving sushi something we all liked, even Paul who is a fussy eater! We moved down the line helping ourselves to this and that, when Paul said 'Oh look, they've got avocado! I love avocado.' He took a great big spoonful and added it onto his plate. We went back to the table, not saying a word but all looking silently at each other. Next thing you know, Paul is spluttering everywhere having mistaken the wasabi for avocado. We laughed so hard. 'You knew didn't you!' he kept saying. Mark was killing himself laughing. After that, Paul was inconsolable. I think he was emotionally scarred.